Seasonal workers like you play a very important role in supporting Australia's agriculture industry. Each year, farmers and agribusinesses depend upon hard-working seasonal teams to complete their crop harvests all over the country.

At Agri Labour Australia (ALA) we work with the best people in the industry. Our clients are screened and checked to ensure that our candidates have excellent and safe working conditions. We also ensure you're receiving compliant pay rates and we provide access to all the training and support our workers need.

With agriculture as busy as ever, our team is working hard to keep connecting candidates like you to the many exciting harvest opportunities that will be happening throughout the coming year.

To let you know about our upcoming roles, Agri Labour Australia have published a new harvest webpage.

Candidates like yourself will be given first priority when it comes to filling these jobs, and with so many interesting roles across the country, we invite you to take a look and register your interest.

Changes to Crossing Borders

As you would be aware, the pandemic has become extremely serious in Victoria, seeing Queensland close its borders to Victoria and now NSW.

For many of you, travelling is a way of life and we urge you to adhere to the restrictions, and to ensure you are following the important social distancing and hygiene measures while at work and in private.

Now, more than ever you must be honest about where you have been and immediately advise your supervisors and those you are in close proximity to if you are feeling unwell with any COVID-19 like symptoms - fever, cough, sore throat and shortness of breath.

It is often difficult to keep up with the changes to the COVID-19 rules, so we recommend this great resource for checking current border restrictions: <https://farmhub.org.au/covid-19/>.

We are always happy to answer your questions, so please reach out to your ALA recruitment consultant if you need to. For more information please visit the Australian Coronavirus website.

Thanks for working with us and stay safe.
